Curtice's Crafty Crew Comes to Cougarville

by Rich Hall

MASTER OF Ceremonies Jack Curtice comes to Provo Friday brings bringing his traveling variety show, and featuring Smorgasbord for the fans attending the event.

However, it is understood there are some local Cats planning on stealing the show. The Brigham Young University group has been holding private rehearsals in preparation for the big performance.

ACCORDING to MC Curtice, the variety comes in his University of Utah "Smorgasbord" offense, which he calls "a little bit of everything."

"We're going to run a little, pass a little, lateral a bit, and hope to keep the fans, opposition and maybe even ourselves guessing as to what will come next," the Ute mentor has stated.

BYU fans are hoping that the part about Utah's "keeping themselves guessing" come true Friday night.

Interest in the Cougar-Ute tilt is running high. At last report before presstime very few tickets were still available, and the indications are that the game will be played before a full house.

ONE OF THE big questions being asked by Cat fans is can the BYU squad play an offensive game that will constitute a threat to Utah. So far this season the Cougars have only been able to average in the neighborhood of 40 yards a game rushing, their passing attack having proved the most effective ground gainer the Brighams have had to date.

However, Head Coach Harold Kopp has been conducting his practice sessions in the comparative privacy of the stadium, hoping to put together some type of sustained attack that will catch the Redskins off guard.

THE DEFENSIVE play of the Cats will be tested to the utmost also. The free-wheeling Ute offense will be a tricky one to keep in check, but after the top

Closed Circuit Priesthood 'Cast Planned

Priesthood members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints are invited to the direct wire hook-up in the Smith Fieldhouse Saturday night, of the Priesthood meeting in the Salt Lake Tabernacle.

The priesthood meeting, part of General Conference held this week-end, will begin at 7 p.m. and is under the direction of Dr. Nephi K. Kezerian, a member of the Brigham Young University High Stake Council.

Since the BYU stake is the host, Stake President Antone K. Romney will preade over the meeting. All members are urged to arrive at the meeting 15 minutes early.

General sessions of the conference will be held Saturday and Sunday at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Ninth Ward has changed its meeting times to comply with 11th Ward.

Relief Society and Priesthood meetings are now held at 9 a.m. in room 240 Smith Building and in the Smith Banquet Hall. Sunday School will be held in room 240, with Sacrament meeting remaining in its present site.

IOC Court Posts Open to Applicants

Inter-Organization Council members of the court and any other students interested in working on the court are asked to come to the IC office Monday at 4 p.m.

Chief justice, prosecuting attorney and other positions are open.

A background in the procedures and regulations of IOC and the Brigham Young University student government will be helpful to those applying.

The court this year will be functioning under a new set of directives and rules established last spring, according to Mish Hepworth, IOC president.

Rodney Fye, IOC executive assistant, will conduct interviews.

o Coordinate Campus Publicity

A new bill passed by the Sen- of Wednesday night is expect- to assure the quality and ef-

rosh Campaigns egin Monday

Campaigning for freshman ary elections starts Monday 8 a.m. and closes at 5 p.m. same day.

hirty-five freshmen will be paigning for the offices of sident, vice president, and e class senators.

Candidates may post photos signs on campus at 8 a.m. y must be removed by 5 . Voting for freshman of- ers begins Tuesday at 8 a.m. ncy of campus publicity.

The bill establishes a permanent publicity committee with its chairman being appointed by the Executive Council. The title of this position will be Director of Campus Publicity.

Representatives appointed by the President or chairmen of student organizations compose the body of the committee. The committee will manage all publicity for studentbody functions.

In previous years much of the publicity or campaigning on campus has been detrimental to the landscaping and very unpleasing to visiting dignitaries, it was pointed out.

The bill will do nothing to hinder publicity except that which does not meet the standards which are to be set and have already been set.

ars Run Roadblocks. . .

Red Painters Infiltrate Campus

PAINTED SLOGANS and posters displaying a pro-Utah attitude about the Friday football game appeared on campus Wednesday evening.

Damage to campus property, however, was minimized by student groups who posted all-night guards about the campus to keep marauders from their sessions.

Numerous carloads of uniformed persons were in the campus vicinity during the night, with several autos running rough roadblocks set up at campus entrances by student cards.

THREE SECURITY department vehicles patrolled the campus through the night. They were radio-controlled.

Most of the marking activity was conducted by persons, both boys and girls, on foot in the area of the Maeser, Brimhall and Eyring Science Center buildings.

Campus traffic signs, trash cans and sidewalks were painted with red 'Ute' symbols. Most of the markings had been removed by custodians early Thursday morning.

IN ADDITION TO campus security officers, dorm residents of D-6 stood all-night watches at strategic points about the campus.

Small posters and papers with "Utah" painted in red were found posted on bulletin boards in the Student Service Center, and doors on the BYU Press and North Building had small posters predicting a Utah victory taped to them.

Social units and dorm groups had pledged men for the guard-ship duties Thursday night, according to Studentbody President Monroe McKay.

The University of Utah Daily Chronicle, student newspaper, reported Wednesday morning that no apparent damage had been done during the night by marauders in Salt Lake City.

BYU Contributes Land For 1700 N. Crossroad

BRIGHAM YOUNG University is contributing property worth more than $25,000 for the construction of a road at 1700 North in Provo.

The agreement, which has been under discussion for several months was reached Wednesday by University President Ernest L. Wilkinson; Sterling D. Jones, Utah County Commission chairman, and Provo City Mayor Harold E. Van Wagenen in a joint meeting.

Planned as a major access, the road will extend from Ninth East to the Provo Canyon Road, and construction "will be commenced at an early date."

AN ALTERNATE route, which would have cut through the BYU campus.

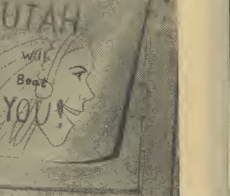
In a statement, the three conferees "recognized that plans for any new road in this area (1700 North) require a consideration of the existing and planned usage of the land as well as its typography.

In the present case, the statement says, these factors prevent the most direct connection between Canyon Road and 9th East.

IT WAS NOT immediately learned what the exact route will be, or how much BYU property will be involved.

The new road will provide a through street where no thoroughfare now exists north of 8th North St.

Two narrow roads, 1340 No. (Phillips Lane, north of the Heritage Halls area) and a county road at about 2300 No. now serve the area.



WRITING ON THE WALL"—One of the posters left on BYU campus buildings Wednesday is typical of the markings found on walks, signs and windows which are definitely pro-Utah. This poster was on a North Bldg. door.

Survey Shows Students Slack

by Carlin Soule
Daily Universe Writer

RECENT survey of 1300 students at 24 colleges revealed only two out of five college students, eligible to vote for the first time in the coming presidential election, plan to do so.

Dr. Stewart Grow, Brigham Young University's political science chairman, expects BYU student voters to show a much higher percentage of voting and interest than this survey predicts.

DR. GROW indicated the LDS Church teaches that it is our duty to vote and take an active interest in our country's affairs. As LDS students, if BYU'ers do not participate more actively that this survey predicts they will not be fulfilling their church obligations.

Utah has shown the Mormon influence in the past by being one of the states with the highest voting percentage.

THE SURVEY, reported in a recent issue of Look Magazine, disclosed that 24 per cent of the students queried had not made up their minds toward which party they leaned, while "a shattering 34 per cent of the test group indicated zero interest in who should be or would be our next vice president."

Also noting that three out of ten students interviewed had no idea whom they favored for the presidency, Eugene Gilbert, president of the Gilbert Youth Research organization, declared:

"THE SOBERING fact of the matter is that a very large number of our young voters plainly don't care one way or another about the coming presidential election, or are so confused that it amounts to the same thing."

The survey in Look also came up with these findings:

Most first voters (21 per cent) admitted that their choice of a candidate would be "strongly influenced" by the candidate's personality and appearance.

THE STUDENTS' views were nebulous on the political effectiveness of television and radio. 22 per cent of them were "completely in the dark' as to whether television and radio influenced them or not.

When queried on their chief complaint about the Democratic and Republican parties, almost 50 per cent of the students found this too remote or complicated, or plain politicol" to express opinion.

THIRTY-EIGHT per cent of those polled, didn't seem to know, or care, what there was to admire about either the Democrats or Republicans.

Dr. Grow urges all BYU students, especially those eligible to vote, to become acquainted with the parties and candidates and be prepared to vote. "Those away from home should write to their county clerk to request an absentee ballot. Those not registered should register," he commented. He also indicated there will be opportunity through Young Republicans, Young Democrats, Citizens for Eisenhower and Volunteers for Stevenson to take an active part in the campaign and to learn about the candidates and parties.

FOR STUDENTS wishing an elaborate presentation of the election, Dr. Grow and Dr. Richard Poll, chairman of the history department, are presenting a non-credit extension course, the 1956 Presidential Election. The course will be held every Wednesday, 7:30 p.m., in 209 McKay Building.

Dr. Grow and Dr. Poll will discuss all the issues and personalities involved in the forthcoming election with a consideration of the outcome after the election. Among the subjects to be discussed are: Eisenhow personalities, choosing the president, methods and reforms, the Republican Party, the Democratic Record, what's at stake? and the issues and the returns.

BYU Mystery Play Scheduled For Oct. 17-20 In Auditorium

The Desperate Hours, a play taken from the novel, will be presented to Brigham Young University students and the public Oct. 17-20 in the Smith auditorium at 8:15 p m.

The play directed by speech department Professor Morris Clinger, is the first major production of the year.

It entails the story of three criminals who hold a family captive in their own house. A movie from the same novel, starring Humphrey Bogart, was released from Hollywood in 1955.

Since the cast was chosen before registration the players were selected from summer students and the community at large

Professor Robert Struthers of the Speech Department is assisting Clinger as technical director. George Tanner is in charge of lighting and painting. Dorothy Whittaker is in charge of costumes.

BYU to Host Meet Friday

First annual Audio-Visual Aids Conference to be held at Brigham Young University Friday is expected to draw between 100 and 150 persons from throughout this region, according to Seth Bills, AVA executive secretary.

"Letters of invitation have been sent out to all public school districts plus junior colleges and universities in Utah, Nevada, Colorado and Idaho," Bills reported.

Lee W. Cochran, AVA executive assistant at the State University of Iowa, has been obtained to deliver two main addresses.

Chairman Mathews said that the exhibit's abstractions have significance particularly as forerunners of modern and contemporary industrial and architectural design. Number of the artists represented in the exhibit were pioneers and styles seen in our automobiles, appliances and modern buildings.

New uses for glass, steel, concrete, and plastics were and are inspired by such designers as Kandinsky, Gleizes, Feininger, and Leger, whose works are included in the show.

The collection represents outstanding works from a hundred years of evolution of painting—from Delacroix, Seurat, Gauguin, Cezanne, Delaunay, Picasso, Marc, Chagall, Gleizes, Leger, to Kandinsky, and Based on twenty years of non-objective painting.

Songleader Named To Fill Vacant Spot

Sharon Benson, last year's head songleader, has been appointed to fill a vacancy in the ranks of this year's new songleaders.

Miss Benson was chosen head songleader last year at the beginning of fall quarter. She was unable to carry on her duties for the full year after fracturing her ankle when she jumped off the basketball court at the first home basketball game of the season.

Still under the care of a bone specialist, she was unable to audition when tryouts were held again last spring.

One of the new songleaders, Leilani Chu, was unable to return to school this fall. According to Gail Sorenson, head songleader, Miss Benson was chosen to fill the vacancy when it became apparent that there would not be time to audition and train a new songleader before the first home football game.

That's Rich

by Rich Hall

WITH THE Brigham Young University-University of Utah game Friday night spirit is running high at both schools, witnessed by the decorations found Thursday on the BYU campus.

We hope that none of the students at Brigham Young have yet returned the visit paid us, or that they contemplate such action.

Not that we are against any display of school spirit, but it seems that there is a clause in the Skyline Conference Code that mentions inter-campus raiding, with expulsion from the league the penalty for the offending schools.

IT WOULD be rough to have BYU sacked out of the league just when the football situation is getting to the point where in a few years we can expect the Cougars to be title contenders.

Rather than run the risk of banishment from the league for painting a few signs on another campus, why not get out Friday night and demonstrate school spirit by yelling your lungs out at the game. That kind of support will do the team a lot more good, and leip the school more in the long run, than attempting to repaint another school.

* * * *

WHILE WE ARE on the subject of school spirit, perhaps the way we demonstrate it at games is worth a few words.

For many years school spirit and good sportsmanship have gone hand in hand at BYU. Lately, however, the good sportsmanship part seems to be slipping.

Booing is becoming more and more noticeable at Cat athletic contests. Acceptable at some schools, booing has long been frowned on at BYU, and there once was a time when it was never heard.

BIT BY BIT though, it seems to be coming back. We would like to see a return to the old spirit where boos were the forgotten thing at games. Especially booing of the officials.

Redskins Come South To Give Variety Show

performance turned in by the BYU defensive men at Fort Collins last Saturday night, local fans are breathing easier along those lines.

The Cougars should be pra cally at full strength for the c test. No serious injuries resulte from last week's game w Colorado A&M, and one or t players who have been on doubtful list should be ready the effort against the Utes.

THE CURTAIN for the show will go up at 8 p.m. Fri night. The cast promises a st ling production, with big thre being said by the backers of Salt Lake City group. Howev remember to watch the li boys. They just may turn i memorable performance.
